GENERAL HILL DEAD.

Passed Away at Home in This Place After Brief Illness.

HIS DISTINGUISHED CAREER.

Beginning Business for Himself as a Young Man He Became a Notable Figure in the Tanning Industry—Won High Honors as a Soldier.

General Jonathan A. Hill died at his home on Main street in this borough at 5:40 on Tuesday morning, after a brief illness. He was seized with uraemic coma at about 3 o'clock on Monday morning, lapsing into unconsciousness from which he did not rally.

The death of General Hill removes from the business life of this section a strong figure, and from his family and friends a man whose name will long be held in loving remembrance for those sterling qualities that go to make up the character of the best American citizenship.

Sketch of His Career.

Jonathan A. Hill was born at Milo, Maine, Jan. 15, 1831. He began working in a tannery at the age of 18 years at $8 per month. As a young man he attended strictly to his duties and exhibited a remarkable capacity for hard work. These qualities soon brought their recognition and it was not long before he was put over a large number of men, his superiors in age and experience.

He worked continuously at the tanning business until the breaking out of the war in 1861, when he began a career of unusual distinction in the service of his country, and, beginning as a captain in Company K of the Eleventh Maine regiment, which he raised in Maine, he rose rapidly to major to lieutenant colonel, to colonel to general, upon the recommendations which he received for his gallant and meritorious conduct.

He received the highest endorsements for his coolness and bravery displayed at Fair Oaks and for his gallantry at New Market and Malvern Hill. At Deep Bottom Colonel Hill was in command when his right arm was shattered by a bullet while he was watching the movements of the enemy. He was compelled to leave off duty for two months but at the end of that time returned to his command with an empty sleeve bearing evidence of his sacrifice.

Among the other battles which General Hill took part in were: Walthal Junction, Chester Station, Drury's Bluff, Richmond Pike, Bermuda Hundred, Deep Run, Russell's Mills, siege of Petersburg, New Market Heights, New Market Roads, Darbytown Road, Charles City Road, Johnson's Plantation, Hatcher's Run, Forts Whitworth and Gregg and Appomattox Court House.

Service After the War.

After the war was ended he was made president of a military commission at Richmond which tried civil cases under martal law. In the fall he was sent in command of the northwestern district with headquarters at Lynchburg, with 33 counties and four regiments under his command. In January, 1866, he was ordered to Fredericksburg in command of the northeastern district. Shortly after this all the volunteers were ordered to be mustered out of the state of Virginia and he returned with his regiment to receive the homage of his people in Maine.

General Hill was the only original commissioned officer out of 33 that was mustered out with the regiment, the others being killed, wounded, retired at the expiration of three years' enlistment, or resigned.

He was made postmaster of the city of Auburn, Me., but found the life too inactive after the stirring scenes of the war with hosts of men under his control and he started a tannery at Forestport, N. Y.. This was in 1867. In connection with Thomas E. Proctor of Boston, under the firm name of Proctor & Hill, he purchased the Greenwood tannery in 1882. In 1888 they purchased the Athens tannery which was superintended by General Hill's son, George R. Hill, until 1898. The Forestport tannery was abandoned in 1888 for want of bark and in 1893 the Athens and Greenwood tanneries were sold to the United States Leather company. General Hill successfully managed the Greenwood tannery up to a few years ago when he retired.

General Hill was highly regarded by his many employees. He charged no rent for the company houses and when the company ran a store there was never any of the usual compulsion in requiring employes to buy at the store. He was kind to his men and during any sickness made personal visits to their houses to give them food and medicine if they needed any assistance. Besides his tannery interests General Hill ran a large farm at Greenwood and was interested in a number of enterprises. He was a stockholder in several Towanda concerns and at the time of his death was a director in the First National bank of this place. He was a regular attendant at the Methodist Episcopal church.

Despite his wealth General Hill lived without ostentation and was a man who liked to know and have a large speaking acquaintance. He was especially loved by his private soldiers in the war and at the occasions of the reunions of the Eleventh Maine regiment his reception from them amounted to an ovation.

General Hill was married on Jan. 16, 1856, to Lucy M. Richards of Rockland, Me., who with these daughters and sons survive: Mrs. William W. Clark and Mrs. M. Claud Gregg of Wayland, N. Y., George R. Hill of Elkins, West Va.; Dr. Jonathan A. Hill, Jr., of New York city.

Deceased was a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, New York Commandery, and was affiliated with the Masonic order at Bangor, Me.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Rockwell of West Burlington, Married 50 Years.

A pleasant event occurred in West Burlington on Wednesday October 18, when about 120 relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Rockwell assembled at their home to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

Orlando W. Rockwell and Miss Mary E. Gamage were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Julia Gamage in West Burlington, October 18, 1855 by Rev. Mr. Beebe of Troy. They commenced housekeping in Troy, where they resided about a year. They then moved to West Burlington where they have since lived. The children—Mrs. E. C. Dickinson, Delos, Willard, and Irvine Rockwell of West Burlington, and Gamage of Elmira, were all present. Of the 17 grandchildren there were but three absent.

The sumptous dinner was served at 12:30 in the parlors of the church. The house and church were tastefully decorated with ferns, yellow chrysanthemuns and bunting. Guests were present from Towanda, Monroeton, Burlington, West Burlington, East Troy, Troy, Canton, Grover, Leona, Athens, Fairview, Elmira, Freeville, and Fairport, Kansas. Mrs. W. H. S. Loller of East Troy and Miss Hila Stanton of Leona, favored the company with several fine readings.

Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts.

SLIPPERY VETERAN.

Stole Checks from Bath Soldiers' Home and Forged Endorsement.

The United States government authorities are working on a case just at present that is especially interesting as well as painful to two Towanda men. About the middle of this month an old soldier, who said he had been at the Bath soldiers' home came here. He went to the store of L. Marks and bought a few dollars' worth of goods, tenderng a check made out to John Emperor. He endorsed that name to the check and Mr. Marks gave him $20.75 in change. He also went to the Lehigh Valley ticket agent, Mr. Bostwick, at the upper station, bought a ticket to Wilkesbarre and tendered another $24 check in payment. Mr. Bostwick accepted it after it had been endorsed and gave the man the change.

The man, who is a veteran, stole several checks from inmates of the soldiers' home and he is now working off these checks about the country. It will probably only be a question of time before he is landed behind the bars for his crooked business.

Funeral of General Hill.

Funeral services for General J. A. Hill were held at the family residence on Main street on Wednesday at 3 o'clock. The body was taken on train No. 7, leaving Towanda at 4:20, to Mr. Hill's old home in Maine. G. W. Kipp, E. F. Kizer, W. T. Davies, Ed. Carter, Jr., J. C. Ingham, Esq., and William Little, Esq., were the pall bearers and they went to Maine with the body.

Charged With Horse Stealing.

Daniel Shear of Towanda township, was arrested by Chief Miller Tuesday on a warrant from Clearfield county charging the larceny of a horse in September last. Shear was placed in jail to wait the arrival of a Clearfied county officer.

SUCCESSFUL GRANGE FAIR.

Willing Workers Needed in the Grange to Fulfill the Watchword of the Order, "Development."—Some Subjects Now Being Discussed.

(Communications to this column should be addressed to A. T. Lilley, LeRoy, Pa.)

Deputy Asa Stevens reports the granges recently inspected by him as being in a healthful condition and all gaining in numbers. All but two own their halls.

A little snubbing now and then, is really a good thing for a man or organization that possesses the right kind of mettle. It gives opportunity to show power to overcome obstacles, and aids to the might of being right.

Some of the most rugged fields, when well subdued by cultivation become the most fertile and valuabe of farming lands, while the golden grain becomes the reward of honest toil.

On the eleventh inst. although it rained all day it was a pleasure to attend the fair of Grange No. 153. Twenty seven exhibitors were on hand with large celery, pumpkins, squashes, corn, beans, potatoes, turnips, cucumbers, watermelons, citrons, tomatoes, beets, carrots, kale, onions, garden huckleberries, oats, buckwheat, lettuce, tobacco, canned fruit, honey, apples, pears, peaches, flowers, nuts, collection of pressed forest leaves, collection of 100 specimen of pressed leaves of the farm and garden, quilts, rugs, sofa pillows, doilies, aprons, ladies' wearing apparel, samplar 90 years old, and other articles of interest. The grange dinner was enjoyed by all. This fair was the closing part of a contest that had been running the past six months.

One who wishes to know all about the crippled and diseased cattle that are slaughtered and made into canned beef, bolcgna sausage, etc., should send 35 cents to the State Master, Lecturer, Secretary or either member of the Executive Committee and a book of 160 pages will be forwarded at once.

In the grange workers are needed to look after the business that is necessary to be attended to at every meeting. Faithful workers are essential to any interest and they are as much needed in the grange as anywhere. Those who only attend the grange a few times in a year, cannot expect to benefit others or to be benefited by the meetings. Willing hearts, willing hands and willing workers may accomplish much good but the willing idler and the willing grumbler must have his reward even though not satisfied.

The lecturer of the national grange says: "The Work of the grange is summed up in the word 'development.' Development means progress, and progress leads to success in the broadest meaning of the word.

This important function of the Grange is not appreciated by the members in general, but regular attendance at its meetings and participation in its exercises results in a mental and moral development that is noticeable to all who come in contact with them. While they are enjoying social and entertaining features of the Grange, they are themselves receiving an influence that is imperceptibly developing culture and refinement in the place of ignorance and uncouthness. The same people could not be induced to attend a school for instruction in these matters, but unconsciously they are attending the most practical school for this purpose that was ever conceived. The founders of the Order exercised rare judgment in laying the foundation of the Grange structure in such a way as to attract people for enjoyment, and in getting enjoyment receive mental training also.

The more general the impression prevails among people of intelligence and culture that the Grange is a successful promoter of knowledge and culture, which beget refinement, the greater will be their interest in it and the more attention they will give to its meetings. When the impression prevails that the Grange is simply a place for social frivolities, of a place to purchase supplies at low prices, important as these matters are to a reasonable extent, the general welfare of the Grange will suffer, but let it be generally known that the prime object of the Grange is the development of the mind, the heart, the social and moral condition, the farm, the home, the community and the world, and our ranks will be augmented by the strong and loyal tillers of the soil, and their families in every section of the land. This development makes better citizens, better fathers and mothers, better boys and girls, better farms, more profitable farming, better homes, better society and better management of public affairs. It promotes all that is good, and retards all that is bad. It is a great feature of a great and growing organization."

Subjects Being Discussed by Granges.

What do we owe to the world?

GEORGE KELLY'S DEATH.

Young Man Fell a Distance of Thirty Feet to a Stone Walk.

The sudden death of George Kelly of Athens, by a fall from the second story balcony of the Stimson House on Thursday evening, came as a great shock to his family and the friends of his boyhood in Towanda. He was the oldest son of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Kelly and would have been 33 years old in November. He learned the printer's trade in the office of The Reporter-Journal, and for nearly ten years had been employed in the office of the Athens Gazette.

The body of Mr. Kelly was brought to the home of his parents on Poplar street Friday afternoon. Funeral services were held at the residence on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock; interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

The Daily Times gives the following particulars:

"At a little after ten Thursday night Mr. Kelly remarked to a company of friends that he was tired and would go up and go to bed. Upon reaching the second story, however, he did not go at once to his room, but stepped out upon the balcony where two of the girls employed in the house and a gentleman friend from the furniture works were visiting. Mr. Kelly sat down upon the railing of the balcony at a point near the side of the hotel on Bridge street, and as he talked he took up a piazza chair which he balanced upon his feet by putting them through th rounds. Even those who were with him at the time are uncertain as to exactly how the accident hapened but in some way the unfortunate man lost his balance and fell backward a distance of 30 feet to the stone floor of the stairway leading to the restaurant.

"His head came in contact with the stone and the skull was broken at both sides."

Addison Fuller.

Addison Fuller, a well known resident of Springfield died at his home on Saturday after a brief illness following a shock. Mr. Fuller was a veteran of the Civil war. He is survived by his wife, one son Floyd, who lives in the west, and one daughter, Mrs. Jos. Smith, of this place. The funeral was held at the church Tuesday at 2 o'clock.

Refused to Talk.

A party of alleged capitalists is making a trip over the proposed New York, Pennsylvania & Southwestern road, the line that has Wyalusing on its route. Chief Engineer Harvey of Binghamton refuses to tell who the bloated bondholders are and the Herald takes this as a sign that there is really something doing.

Damages Claimed.

Will Allis was given a hearing before Justice Meredith Tuesday and pleaded not guilty to reckless driving and damaging the carriage of Charles L. Crandall during the fair week here. Crandall claims that Allis ran in to him and broke a wheel of a new carriage. The hearing was continued until Saturday.

Skull Fractured.

An Italian was taken to the Sayre hospital Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock suffering from a fractured skull and it is reported that his injuries may prove fatal. The injuries wer the result of a row among the Italians in Milltown. A fellow countryman and woman are under arrest.

All Free From Disease.

Dr. R. G. Rice has just completed the inspection of a herd of dairy cows for S. B. Wickizer on the Kirby farm at East Towanda and found the entire herd in a healthy condition, being free from tuberculosis and the stables in a good sanitary condition.

Towanda Boy Injured.

While sharpening a pencil, Sunday afternoon, Harold Tice, a Towanda young man, who was visiting friends in Sayre accidentally cut his hand severely with a pocket knife. A Sayre physician dressed the wound.

Appraisers Appointed.

Harry B. Drake of Athens and Hon. E. M. Tuton of Bentley Creek have been appointed appraisers in the assignment of M. Craig & Son at Bentley Creek.

JUDGMENT AFFIRMED

This Court Upheld by Superior Court in Insurance Suit.

OPINION BY JUSTICE ORLADY

Court Holds That Mistake, if Any, Was Made by Company's Agent and Was Through no Misrepresentation on Part of Insured.

An opinion of the Superior court, Justice Orlady writing it, has just been filed at the prothonotary's office here in which the finding of the court of common pleas of Bradford county, Judge Fanning presiding, is affirmed. The suit is that of Theodore F. Porter vs. The Insurance Company of North America of Philadelphia and the finding of this court and its affirmation by the Superior court will be a matter of much interest to fire insurance companies everywhere.

The circumstances of the case are substantially as follows: S. P. and Effie Tinklepaugh of Granville took out a policy dated July 10, 1899 in the sum of $1,400 of which $500 was upon the dwelling house and the balance upon the personal property in the house and barn. The Tinklepaughs were husband and wife and joint owners. In April, 1901, the wife in a personal interview and by letter instructed the company's agent, L. H. Oliver of Troy, to place additional insurance on the property, the policy to be made out in her name.

As there had been an increase in rates the agent advised that it would be better to indorse the additional insurance on the old policy which was done, and part of the endorsement was: "It is understood that this policy insures Effie Tinklepaugh only now sole owner of the property insured."

At this time the title to the property continued to be in S. P. and Effie Tinklepaugh, who on May 21, 1901 conveyed the real estate insured to Theodore F. Porter in trust for Effie Tinklepaugh, a minor child of the couple. Mrs. Tinklepaugh wrote to the agent concerning the change in ownership and that the fire loss, if any, should be paid to Mr. Porter. The jury in the suit found affirmatively concerning this. The policy was endorsed by the agent to pay any loss to Mr. Porter, "who now holds the title to the farm." The property was destroyed by fire in July, 1901.

The insurance company refused to pay on the grounds that the policy became void by reason of the non-occupancy of the premises from Nov. 1900 to April 1901; that when the additional insurance was secured Effie Tinklepaugh was not the unconditional and sole owner. The Superior court holds that as the agent had due notice of the change in owners and there was no misrepresentation on the part of those getting the insurance and the policy had been indorsed, it was not material if the premises were unoccupied prior to the time of this endorsement which amounted to a new policy; also that if there was any contention concerning the fact that the property was deeded not to Porter absolutely but in trust for Effie Tinklepaugh, the agent Oliver had been so informed and it was the agent's mistake, if any was made, that the policy did not so state. The judgment is therefore affirmed by the Superior court.

On the trial of the suit, Stone & Brooks apeared for the plaintiff and H. K. Mitchell and I. McPherson for the defendant company.

Smithfield Man Injured.

Nelson Breece of Laurel Hill, Smithfield township, was badly bruised in a runaway accident on Sunday morning. He was unloading milk at the Floss skimming station when his horse became frightened and ran, throwing him out backward. One foot caught in an iron rail on the wagon and Mr. Brece was dragged for a considerable distance until his horse collided with the wagon of Darius Young, when he was rescued from his extremely perilous position. Although he was badly bruised and shaken up, Dr. Campbell found no bones broken and thinks he will recover.

Mrs. Jennie Stanton.

Mrs. Jennie Stanton, wife of Merton Stanton, died at her home on the River Road near Chemung at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning after a brief illness. She is survived by her husband and three children, Glycon, Margery and Mertle, four brothers, Douglas, William and Jason Young of Wetona. The funeral services were held at the family residence on the River Road at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and in the M. E. church in Wetona, at 2:30 p. m. Burial was at Wetona.

Elected to High Office.

Rev. Lyman Weeks, formerly a member of the Wyoming conference and pastor of the Sayre M. E. church, was elected superintendent, or bishop, of the Universalist churches of New York state at the annual convention, which convened in Auburn last week.

WILL TEST LAW.

Coudersport Attorney Believes Vaccination Law Unconstitutional.

Evidently there is going to be some trouble in Coudersport over the compulsory vaccination law, which stipulate that all children must be vaccinated before they can be enrolled as students of the public schools. At a meeting of a women's society here the question was brought up and a heated discussion took place. Several of the prominent ladies present said they would not allow their children to be vaccinated and that they will not allow the school board to keep the children out of school.

A prominent attorney there says that his children will not be vaccinated and if they are prevented from attending school he will carry the matter to the highest court, feeling that he will be sustained in his position. It has been many a year since Coudersport has been so agitated by any question as the one of compulsory vaccination, and undoubtedly there is serious trouble ahead.—Corning Leader.

SUSTAINED SHOCK.

Hon. Scott Newman of Smithfield Speechles for a Time.

Hon. A. Scot Newman of Smithfield sustained a shock last Friday that left him paralyized on the left side and renderd him speechless for a time. He had gone out to the stable to feed his horses when all at once he felt prickly sensation in his hand and gradually creeping into his arm and neck.

He became alarmed and started for the house, but was overcome as he reached the porch. Medical aid was summoned. Monday his condition was improved. Mr. Newman is a very prominent business man, well known and respected. He served in the Pennsylvania legislature with credit two terms and is a man of high intelligence and honor.

Some of the fields in which advertising successes are easiest of attainment are most neglected in the cultivation. Restaurant advertising, for instance, in competent hands never fails to pay, because it has a powerful natural ally in appetite, from which no healthy woman or man can escape. Why are not Appetite and Advertising more frequently put to work in combination? There is no load too heavy for them to draw in double harness save dyspepsia.—Philadelphia Record.

Formed New Firm.

Announcement is made that William A. Keener and Liston L. Lewis have withdrawn from the law firm of Hatch, Keener and Clute and have formed a co-partnership under the firm name of Keener & Lewis for the general practice of law. Their offices are in the Mutual Life building at 32 Nassua street. Mr. Lewis is a former Canton man who has had an unusual degree of success in New York and whose many friends in Bradford county will wish for its continuance.

We know of a man who year by year makes $100 per acre from his crops of Hubbard squash, and they cost no more to raise than a crop of pumpkins.

A man is likely to have pretty poor fare if he depends too much upon Providence. All Biblical references to Providence imply a whole lot of hustling before they become operative.

The average American likes to do work on the hurrah plan—a lot of machinery, men and teams—likes the big thrashing outfit, the big road grader and the big gang of men to boss. These big outfits are by no means the most economical for the small farmer.

In the old baronial days a boar's head baked was considered the great dish of the feast. Recalling this fact, we are reminded that the tastes of the people have improved, for it would be hard to find a coarser, ranker meat for a banquet than an old boar's head.

A raiser of turkeys for the market advises the pouring of a pint of strong vinegar down the throats of the birds twenty-four hours before they are killed, claiming that such treatment will make the flesh of the bird more tender. This is a good example of the refined brutality of our modern civilization.

Sometimes when a man imports a good horse into a community he does as much in a patriotic way for his community as though he had enlisted in the army. We recall one instance where the importation of such a horse gave to the horses sold during the succeeding ten years an added value of over $20,000.

With wool at from 20 to 23 cents and mutton worth 5 to 7 cents per pound the sheep is one of the best propositions there is on the farm today. They pay as well as the cow, are better fertilizers and weed destroyers and no bother about milking. If these prices for sheep and their products could only be assured there would be hundreds kept where none is now.

A man never makes very much of a mistake when he selects a soil for a farm upon which the clovers grow naturally. Poor though the soil may seem to be, the presence of the clover gives assurance of large productive capacity and certain promise that such land can easily be re-enforced and enriched. We have come to the opinion that the worst thing which can be said of any soil is that it will not grow clover.

We came across an old man of eighty years the other day, one who was a pioneer settler of the western prairies, who went through all the hardships incident to that kind of a life fifty years ago, and he was not loafing around on the porch in an easy chair or hobbling around with a cane, but was tough and wiry enough so that he had just finished plowing eighty acres of land, using four horses, and he told us that he thoroughly enjoyed doing the work. Now, that is the right way to grow old.

An old friend told us recently that when the first steel plow which would scour in the muck soils of the Illinois river bottoms was brought into his neighborhood the man who got it was so tickled with it that he wanted to keep it going night and day. When steel was so tempered that a plow would keep clean and bright in the rich, sticky soils of the prairie west it was one of the greatest of agricultural discoveries. Modern methods of farming would be simply impossible without the polished steel to work the soil.

One of the most encouraging things in an agricultural way to be noted these days is the fact that the American people are fast learning much about the wonderful productive capacity of a small piece of land when intelligently and properly cared for. What these possibilities are is well illustrated by the case of a ten acre truck farmer near Boston, who is said to take from his land produce worth $10,000 a year, or at the rate of $1,000 per acre. Millions and millions of acres of the best land in the world are located in the west which do not make a crop return of over $8 per acre, and other millions which do not do as well as this.

We have two or three complaints about a failure to secure a stand of clover which was sown with a nurse crop last spring. This is not an uncommon thing. The nurse crop, wrongly so called, often smothers the tender clover plants, or, if it does not entirely kill them, they are left so weak and spindly when the crop is removed in July that the fierce midsummer heat and drought very soon finish them up. The surest way to insure a stand of clover is to sow it without any nurse crop at all. The next best thing is to sow only one-half as much seed of the nurse crop as is usually done. Oats make the worst nurse crop, wheat is better, barley and flax better yet. Where it is desired to get a stand of clover the nurse crop should be always a secondary consideration.

MINING THE SOIL.

A gentleman from abroad interested in agriculture very aptly referred to the common methods of farming in this country as "mining the soil." Mining implies removing the valuable things from the soil and leaving nothing in their place, such kind of farming as makes the land grow constantly poorer. This thing is the bane of western agriculture particularly, it being practiced under the foolish delusion that western soils are so fertile that nothing can ever wear them out. Evidences of soil depletion are now met with on every hand, for the growing crops indicate that the soil they grow in is starved and hungry. Such methods of farming would not be permitted for a moment in any of the European countries, for had they been followed such countries would long ago have been depopulated, the people starved off from the land. In those countries today as much attention is paid to properly feeding the soil as any of the animals on the farm. Rotation crops, the extensive use of the legumes, the continuous application of fertilizers to the land and the keeping of as large an amount of stock as possible on the farm are a part of the ten commandments in foreign agriculture, and we will have to come to the same method if we ever conserve and increase the fertility of our soils, no matter how rich they may have been in their virgin state. The tenant system here is altogether bad, the one year rental scheme being a soil robber of the first order. Continued grain raising and grain selling is another, and the utter failure to grow clover on so many farms insures a continuing depletion of all soil fertility.

If the cocklebur has not yet got a foothold on your farm you had better keep an eye out for it, for it is one of the peskiest of western weeds.

There is a whole lot more satisfaction in producing a thousand bushels of corn on twenty acres than on forty acres, and it can be done just as well as not.

A late writer for one of the leading magazines describing some rural experiences got along all right until he struck the quail, which he referred to as giving his call of "bobwhite" while it drummed on a rotten log down in the woods. This comes of trying to write about things one knows nothing about.

The best apples are quite apt to be shy bearers and hence unprofitable apples to raise. If one is in the apple business in a commercial way he must have trees which will bear the fruit. This is the one redeeming feature of the Ben Davis.

The time is fast coming in this country when either the Chinaman or the Jap will be cordially welcomed as a domestic drudge, as the doer of that work in American homes which our girls are too high toned or too ignorant or too lazy to do.

If ablebodied men in this country find themselves today out of employment it is because they are either in the wrong place or do not want to work. We do not recall a time when the demand for labor was more urgent or the wages paid more satisfactory.

The west has just finished one of the most successful corn canning seasons it has ever known. The crop of sweet corn was very large and every factory ran to its full capacity during the season. The farmers made good money whether the packers will or not.

Brome grass and quack grass are very closely allied in the matter of taking complete possession of the soil and being extremely difficult to get rid of when once well established. The brome grass should never be sown on any field which is included in the regular course of rotation. Its place is in the permanent pasture.

It is worth repeating again that the more a blue grass pasture is tousled around with a disk and drag in the early spring the better the pasture will be. Many such pastures well disked and dragged in the spring can be made worth twice as much as a pasture by such treatment. It is a good idea to scatter a little medium clover seed over it just before the last time over with the drag.

A raw story is going the rounds of the press to the effect that a western poultryman is feeding a large number of ducks and geese on buttermilk at a creamery, with the result that the birds are doing finely and that the buttermilk ration converts their naturally dark colored flesh into meat as white as that of a chicken. If this were true it would be a valuable suggestion for our colored brethren who would like to lighten up their complexions. Some men are great liars.

A poor man should take care, and good care, of his credit. It may not be a big thing in dollars and cents, but it is worth more proportionately to him than it is to his richer neighbor. Buying in small quantities, as the poor man must necessarily, he should try to pay cash, for when to the higher prices, which he has to pay as a small retail purchaser, there is added the extra charge he pays when buying on credit he very often pays nearly two prices for the necessaries of life.

That "other eighty" has quite often proved a poor investment for the western farmer. Possessed with an inordinate lust for land, no sooner is the old farm paid for than it is again mortgaged to buy that eighty. This works badly in many ways. It is probable that the old homestead furnishes all the acres which the owner can profitably work. Then just so long as a mortgage hangs over the farm just so long is kept up a series of pinching economies to meet the interest and pay off the principal, which not only tell on the productive power of the farm, but are all too often reflected in all that pertains to living in the farm home.

THE MIGRATION TO CANADA.

The stampede of farmers from the States to western Canada still continues, the number settling there this season being estimated at not less than 50,000. The conditions there are very attractive. The land is cheap—from $6 to $15 per acre—it is easily brought under cultivation and is especially adapted to the growth of wheat, oats, barley, flax, potatoes and vegetables. The quality of the wheat produced is of the best and always commands the highest market price, and then it is a safe and very productive crop, an average of twenty bushels per acre for a period of twenty years being claimed. There are some drawbacks to farm life in that faraway country. The American has to live under a monarchial form of government instead of a republic, farm work is crowded into a short period of each year, farms are large, and the people live an isolated life; then the wheat business is sure to come to an end there, just as it has done in all new countries in the United States, and for want of the ability to raise corn the carrying on of a diversified agriculture will be far more difficult than in the States. However, men can make a lot of money there now just growing wheat, and it is this fact that is the magnet which is attracting the farmers of the corn belt.

GOOD AND POOR POTATOES.

We are asked what the conditions should be in order to produce a fine potato—a well flavored, mealy tuber. The variety of potato has much to do with this proposition, the nature of the soil in which it is grown still more, while the weather conditions materially change the quality. It may be said that all kinds of potatoes which naturally grow to a large size are of coarse texture and low grade, quite apt to be hollow at the core and watery; then all early maturing varieties are as a rule poor keepers and soon lose their mealiness and high quality. Potatoes of any kind only scantily covered with earth and more or less exposed to the intense heat of the summer sun and more or less light are always of low grade. A very wet season lowers the grade if it does not injure the crop by rot. It may be said that sandy soils are always better for the potato than muck or clay soils, the finest potatoes in the country being produced on the thin pine wood soils of upper Michigan and Wisconsin. The potato demands a good supply of humus in the soil; thus we find newly cleared timber land or a clover sod the best location for this crop. It also thrives greatly under the irrigation systems of the far west.

A GREAT WASTE.

The waste associated with the cornstalks all over the corn growing section is something enormous, probably the biggest agricultural waste to be found in the whole country. Only a very small per cent of the stalks are utilized as fodder save as the stock run through the fields during the fall and winter and, with little benefit to the cattle, fill themselves with the dry and withered husks. Not less than 25 per cent of the food value of the corn plant is thus entirely wasted. There is no manufacturing business in all the country which would stand this sort of a loss for a minute or even one-tenth of it. Men say it does not pay to put corn in the silo or cut it up for winter feed because they have so much hay. The question is why they devote so many acres to the production of hay when the cornfield offers the best possible substitute for it. Utilizing the corn fodder releases just so many acres of hay land and to all intents and purposes thus increases the acreage of a man's farm. High priced corn land is going to compel a change. The stalks will either be utilized as winter fodder for the stock or some method will be devised to use them for their value in the making of paper.

Farm land having a selling value of $100 per acre must be worked in a better way than land worth only $35 per acre if it is to be made profitable. One trouble is that the land which gets up to $100 is, because of bad methods, not as productive as when it was worth only $35. The high priced farm cannot be run as a grain farm alone, just raising and selling the grain from the farm. This kind of farming may be done for a few years when the country and the soil are new, but not forty or fifty years after its occupation. The question of a proper rotation of crops, the relation of the grasses and the clovers to the fertility of the farm, the keeping and feeding of the domestic animals to consume the various farm products, must then have careful consideration. Thirty bushels of corn or oats to the acre will never work with $100 land.

We noticed several carloads of range steers on their way to market the other day. They came from the far west, and, what was rather remarkable, they were aged steers, probably four to six years old. They were big, rawboned fellows, with great horns on them, just like the old oxen we used to have, when a yoke of them hauled an old iron plow which would not scour for us when a boy a good many years ago. This type of beef has almost entirely disappeared from the markets, the three-year-old steer being about the extreme in point of age.

We lately saw a woman driving a team hitched to a mower, and she was cutting the weeds down in a large pasture lot. It was not hard work for either her or the team, and she was doing lots more good than if she had been doing some fancy work, reading one of these historical novels or making one of some tea party.

We do not now know of a single person who is engaged in the raising of Belgian hares. That fad is entirely dead. There never was anything to it as a meat making proposition. Ever if the meat could have been raised as claimed there was no profitable market for it. It is about time for another fad of this sort.

THE COLOR QUESTION

South Must Solve It, Declares Roosevelt at Tuskegee.

EDUCATION THE FIRST THING

President Praises Booker Washington's Work, Tells Blacks and Whites to Work Together and Pleads For Higher Respect For Law From Both.

Tuskegee, Ala., Oct. 24.—President Roosevelt was met at his train here by a reception committee among whom were Mayor O. S. Lewis and Dr. John Massey, president of the Alabama Conference Female college. Escorted by a company of state militia, the president was driven to the college, which represented a typical southern scene. Cotton had been transplanted in long rows, and two old southern negroes with cotton pickers' sacks on their shoulders were engaged in picking the staple from the plants. Several baskets of cotton were scattered about the field. The president was greeted at the college grounds by the students and public school children. The president's address there was short, and at its conclusion he left for the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial school.

Fifteen Hundred Students In Line.

The parade was headed by the institute band. Then came 1,500 students of the school in two divisions, the young men uniformed in blue suits, with brass buttons, white gloves and cadet caps. The young women, wearing blue dresses trimmed with red braid and wearing blue straw braid hats, followed, each bearing a stalk of sugar cane topped with a cotton boll, all raised in the school's agricultural experiment station. Immediately behind the student body came sixty-one floats representing the various phases of work of the academy department and the thirty-seven industrial divisions of the school. At the school chapel Booker T. Washington introduced President Roosevelt, who spoke as follows:

To the white population, as well as to the black, it is of the utmost importance that the negro be encouraged to make himself a citizen of the highest type of usefulness. The south has always depended and now depends chiefly upon her native population for her work. Therefore, in view of the scarcity not only of common labor, but of skilled labor, it becomes doubly important to train every available man to be of the utmost use by developing his intelligence, his skill and his capacity for conscientious effort. Your 1,500 students are not only being educated in head and heart, but also trained to industrial efficiency, for from the beginning Tuskegee has placed especial emphasis upon the training of men and women in agriculture, mechanics and household duties. Training in these three fundamental directions does not embrace all that the negro or any other race needs, but it does cover in a very large degree the field in which the negro can at present do most for himself and be most helpful to his white neighbors. Every black man who leaves this institute better able to do mechanical or industrial work adds by so much to the wealth of the whole community and benefits all people in the community. The professional and mercantile avenues to success are overcrowded; for the present the best chance of success awaits the intelligent worker at some mechanical trade or on a farm, for this man will almost certainly achieve industrial independence. I am pleased, but not in the least surprised, to learn that many among the men and women trained at Tuskegee find immediate employment as leaders and workers among their own people and that their services are eagerly sought by white people for various kinds of industrial work, the demand being much greater than the supply.

The Public's Debt to Tuskegee.

Merely from the economic standpoint, it is of the utmost consequence to all our citizens that institutions such as this at Tuskegee should be a success, but there are other and even higher reasons that entitle it to our support. In the interest of humanity, of justice and of self protection, every white man in America, no matter where he lives, should try to help the negro to help himself. It is in the interest and for the protection of the white man to see that the negro is educated. It is not only the duty of the white man, but it is to his interest to see that the negro is protected in property, in life and in all his legal rights. Every time a law is broken every individual in the community has the moral tone of his life lowered. Lawlessness in the United States is not confined to any one section; lynching is not confined to any one section, and there is perhaps no body of American citizens who have deserved so well of the entire American people as the public men, the publicists, the clergymen, the countless thousands of high minded private citizens, who have done such heroic work in the south in arousing public opinion against lawlessness in all its forms, and especially against lynching. I very earnestly hope that their example will count in the north as well as in the south, for there are just as great evils to be warred against in one region of our country as in another, though they are not in all places the same evils. And when any body of men in any community stands bravely for what is right, these men not merely serve a useful purpose in doing the particular task to which they set themselves, but give a lift to the cause of good citizenship throughout the Union.

The future of the south now depends upon the people of both races living up to the spirit and letter of the laws of their several states and working out the destinies of both races not as races, but as law abiding American citizens.

President Captures Mobile.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 24.—President Roosevelt stormed this city and captured it. Thousands fought their way to his carriage to shake his hand, and on every side was heard the expression, "If Roosevelt were to run again tomorrow the south would give him a wonderful majority." The president's speech in Bienville square was listened to by 40,000 people, and great enthusiasm was shown. One notable feature of the day was contributed by Judge Oliver J. Semmes, son of the Confederate admiral, Raphael Semmes, the commander of the famous Alabama. Judge Semmes presented to the president a handsome souvenir badge.

Simplon Tunnel Opening.

The opening of the Simplon tunnel from Switzerland to Italy will have to be postponed four months or possibly a year because 800 meters still lack the requisite masonry work.

SULTAN'S BLUFF GOOD.

How Sulu's Potentate Got the Best of His Uncle Sam.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The sultan of Sulu has just won a signal victory over the American customs that will tickle many a victim of its stern, hard decrees. He has beat it out of 480 pesos, or Spanish dollars, upon a most gorgeous uniform that he declared he would wear and no other, or would go naked.

The uniform was a motley garb composed of an old fashioned high hat of the vintage of 1848, a pair of black tights heavily spangled with gold, such as are worn by amazons of the stage; a waistcoat of heavy gold brocade, an evening dress coat lined and quilted with varicolored satins, a feather boa of ostrich tips of black and white, a pair of brocaded bead Indian moccasins and a Japanese kimono, the latter to be worn next a Malay's bronze pelt and under the dress coat.

Jolo, when told that he would have to pay duty upon the things, took the American bull by the horns and issued an edict that if he could not have the uniform that befitted his position he would go naked. Sooner than have the latter happen the Philippine commission let him have the fantastic rig free.

CAUGHT A SUBMARINE.

English Fishermen Thought They Had Netted a Whale.

London, Oct. 23.—An extraordinary tale of the sea has just come to light. A five ton boat recently put out from Brixham in Devonshire, and the captain lowered his trawl net of eight feet beam.

Soon, with the wind behind him, he was making a steady course, when suddenly the boat stopped, the sails flapped, and before the amazed captain could realize what was happening the boat began to move astern at a good pace.

Utterly at a loss to comprehend the reason for this extraordinary turn of events and thinking he had caught a whale, which might possibly drag the boat under water, he rushed aft and cut the trawl rope. At once the boat stopped, and the captain put about to see what would happen. In a few moments the dark, shiny back of a sea monster appeared above the surface.

A submarine which was maneuvering in the bay had become entangled in his trawl. The crew of the submarine gravely returned the captain his trawl, and, with mutual apologies and much laughter, the incident was closed.

CHARGED BY COSSACKS.

Casualties Numerous In New Rioting at Kharhov.

Kharkov, Russia, Oct. 24.—A serious conflict between troops and the people, during which there were many casualties on both sides, occurred here. While a meeting of 20,000 citizens, students and workmen was in progress the cry of "The Cossacks are coming!" was suddenly raised and a panic followed. Many persons were injured in the crush.

Subsequently the crowd came in contact with a detachment of cavalry, revolver shots were fired by some of the civilians and small bombs were hurled among the cavalry.

The latter thereupon fired two volleys with blank cartridges and then fired with bullets. Both sides suffered seriously. Many of the wounded were left on the ground when the crowd dispersed.

Strikers have since plundered the gunsmiths' stores and have armed themselves. A number of bakeries have been destroyed, and all work has been stopped at others. Scarcity in the necessaries of life is already felt here.

An Omnivorous Elephant.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Oct. 24.—A warrant has been sworn out for the manager of a circus and Tip, one of his elephants, for the theft of an $800 diamond set gold watch and the destruction of a Parisian confection in millinery, the property of Mrs. Ella Goltz of Portsmouth, O., who is visiting in this city. Mrs. Goltz was feeding Tip with peanuts when the pachyderm took her watch in his trunk, placed it carefully in his mouth and then followed the theft by stowing away her hat.

Mrs. Wiggs Didn't Pay Her Taxes.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice, who four years ago sprang into prominence through the medium of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," appeared in the county court and admitted that she had failed to give a correct accounting of personalty, amounting to $26,000, that is subject to taxation. This has been going on since 1903. Suit had been initiated against the author by Revenue Agent A. J. Bisot, whose special duty it is to look after back taxes.

Not until it is all over can the editor decide whether an automobile race shall be printed on the sporting page or among the day's tragedies.—Baltimore Sun.

People who undertake to drown their sorrow are quite likely to discover that sorrow is a very good swimmer.

Some men are born infamous, some gradually lose their reputations and some have their reputations taken away from them by committees of investigation.—Houston Chronicle.

Three burglars in New York claim to have robbed 400 homes. It's a great record, but it looks dim beside the record of three insurance companies, who have touched about 4,000,000 homes.—Montreal Star.

The durable satisfactions of life was the theme of President Eliot's talk to the freshmen at Harvard the other night. He told the boys that there were no satisfactions apart from moral cleanliness. And he told them the truth.

The general conference of the Primitive Methodist church, in session in Shenandoah church, in session in Shenandoah, Pa., passed a resolution thanking President Roosevelt for the part he took in ending the Russo-Japanese war.

A sensation was created at Lansford by the Panther Creek Valley Ministerial association, when it issued strong resolutions calling upon the switchback railway to discontinue running Sunday excursions, with the understanding if they are not discontinued legal steps will be taken to bring about a cessation. Dealers in objectionable postal cards and curios were also notified to desist under penalty of prosecution.

To rid his place of business of undesirable patronage P. J. Mulholland, a saloon keeper, at Shenandoah, recently a candidate for controller, has public invited the wife who has a drunkard for a husband or the man who has a friend who is unfortunately dissipated to give him notice in writing and he will exclude them from his place of business. Fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers are asked to assist in this work of reformation.

The question of gambling and gambling houses is prominent in Montrose just now. The names of several young men, (some not so very young, and some mere boys) who are in the gambling habit and who gather at some of the hotels for the purpose, nightly, and Sundays, too, have been furnished. The names, and the circumstances in the case are under consideration by interested parties, and it is expected the proper authorities will do their duty. It is said that there is enough undoubted evidence to put some Montrose hotels out of business for permitting gambling.—Montrose Democrat.

People who write communications for newspapers should learn to sign their names to them, not necessarily for publication, but so that the editor may know the source of the communication. Newspapers, at least a large majority of them, which are properly conducted, never use the name of a correspondent against his wishes. Sometimes there is a good reason why a communication cannot be used unless the writer is willing to permit his identity to be known. In that case, if he prefers to remain in the dark rather than to have the article used with his name, the communication must be refused publication.

COMMISSIONER CANDIDATES.

No argument is necessary to convince any one of intelligence that in a county as large and populous as Bradford there is a vast amount of important business, directly and vitally relative to the welfare of the people, which comes to the county commissioners' office for attention and official action. The servants named and chosen by the people, our county commissioners, are the men into whose hands this vast business falls. How important, then, that our county commissioners shall be good and true men, competent to discharge their important duties and faithful to the interests of the thousands of people whom they serve.

The Republican ticket presents two names, Edson D. Harkness of Springfield, and Langdon H. Marsh of Wyalusing. Mr. Harkness has served in the commissioners' office one term of three years. Has anyone aught to say against the manner in which he has done his work? No!

Has he proved himself competent to fill the position, to satisfactorily discharge the duties connected with it? Entirely so.

Has he been faithful to this trust? Yes, in every way. On these facts, on his official record, and on his record as a man and a citizen Mr. Harkness bases his candidacy. Could better reasons why Republicans should vote for him be given?

Mr. Harkness has made an excellent county commissioner and the people know it. They know him to be an honest man and are not unmindful of his faithfulness as an official, and his record of well doing is the essential, significant and potent fact in his candidacy. This fact is doing Mr. Harkness far more good, and will continue to until the polls close on November 7, than anything that is being said against him will do him harm. On election day he will receive an endorsement from the people that will show that in a political fight, as well as in almost every other kind of a fight, a good name is something much to be desired and that mud slinging don't pay.

Langdon H. Marsh, the candidate from the East, is well known generally, and personally and particularly to the people of Eastern Bradford. He is a practical farmer and is a successful business man, and is known as a man of integrity and honor. He has never held public office—at least not a county office—and, unlike his associate on the ticket will come to the commissionership without experience in the business pertaining to it. He is, however, a man of intelligence and of a practical mind, and is in every way qualified to assume the responsibilities of the office to which he aspires.

The Republicans of Bradford county have named clean, excellent men for county commissioners and every Republican should go to the polls and vote for them. They should do this, first, because of their worthiness and fitness for the office; and, second, because they are the nominees of the party, made so by a vote at the primaries so pronounced that it left no doubt of the wishes of a majority of the voters. By what sophistry or pretense, then, can any Republican refuse to give them his vote? If there are any Republicans who have contemplated such action we believe that a calm, second thought will convince them of the unreasonableness and unfairness of such a course, because it involves not only a wrong to the candidates themselves who are directly affected by it, but, also to the whole ticket and the party itself. We believe that the Republicans of the county are too sensible and loyal to be led away from their duty, either by the grievances of disaffected Republicans or by the false statements of disappointed candidates.

Pennsylvania hotel men have decided to fight for the right of selling liquor on Sunday. This decision was reached at the first session of the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Hotel Men's Association, held in Philadelphia. To draft a set of resolutions, looking to legislation granting hotel men special privileges on Sunday, the following committee was appointed: Joseph Bensinger, chairman, DuBois; W. H. Cles, Charleroi; State Senator D. F. Thomas, Mahanoy City; William C. Richardson, Philadelphia; Otto Richler, Jeanette. The members also decided to keep a list of persons who make a practice of passing forged checks and other worthless paper, and to prosecute offenders. The hotel men will find that their endeavors for an open Sunday will be vigorously opposed.

October.

She stands upon the silent hills,
A tender sorrow in her eyes,
As one whose heart at parting thrills
With summer's sunniest memories;
While, waking form her tearful gloom,
With cheeks on fire and eyes aflame,
All nature blushes into her bloom
At sound of her beloved name.

Back to the world she woes the light
That died as summer's smile expires;
And all the fading woods grow bright
With flashes of her altar fires:
Yet crowned and pale she walks apart,
Lips moving in a mute caress,
And folds above her throbbing heart
The mantle of her loneliness.

As sometimes when the bloom has fled,
The light that marked our summer gone,
When spring's best hopes are ripe or dead
And life's pale winter hurrying on—
We stand at eventide aside,
Wearing the robes we hope to win,
And fold our lives at piteous pride,
All fair without, all scarred within.

FOOTBALL BRUTAL.

The sentiments of all Princeton students and graduates have been voiced in "The Alumni Weekly," which congratulates President Roosevelt on his plan of cleaning up college athletics. The editorial says:

To almost every one but a few of those entangled in the dominant theory and practice of the game itself, it has been plain for some time that unless football is radically reformed this great American college sport is doomed.

The evils of the present form and practice of football are known to evvry one who has followed the games in recent years and whose vision is not obscured by that intimate participation which makes politicians, for instance, proverbially blind to the signs of the times, heedfully deaf to a popular demand and blissfully ignorant of an impending crisis. A more fatal indictment of the recent development of the game is not needed to enforce the demand for reform than the following remarks from "The Daily Princetonian," the undergraduate sheet:

"Football as played among the colleges today has reached a stage where it is losing its element of sport and it is becoming work of the hardest kind. The men on the squad are willing and determined to bend all their energies to make this work count for success."

In other words, football is not play, it is work; football is not sport, it is business; the players do not enjoy the game, they play from a sense of duty, from devotion to Alma Mater.

If football is no longer a sport, has it any place in college athletics, whose aim presumably is to provide a healthful and entertaining means of diversion and physical exercise for young men primamily engaged in intellectual tasks? With the introduction of the preceptorial system, no one knows better than the Princeton undergraduates themselves that their playtime should not be sacrificed to work of the hardest kind? Abolish football? By no means. We love the game too much for that, but, as President Woodrow Wilson declared two or three years ago, unless football is reformed it is doomed, and that is why we bespeak a hearty co-operation with President Roosevelt in his efforts to save the great American college game.

WATERS FOR TREASURER.

The Republicans of the county of Bradford have nominated for county treasurer Frank Waters of Athens, and they have made a most excellent and wise choice. Mr. Waters has spent his life in Bradford county and who he is and what he is are known quantities. He has a life long record for honorable dealing and enjoys the esteem and high regard of all who know him. He has been an active business man and in the conduct of his own affairs and in his dealings with others has proven his competency and shown himself trustworthy. The business of the county treasurer's office will be well and carefully attended to if the Republican nominee is chosen to administer it.

In politics Mr. Waters has always been a Republican and has taken an active part in furthering the interests of the Republican cause. The Republicans of Bradford county are all in line this Fall, and Frank Waters for county treasurer will receive one of the largest majorities given a Republican candidate.

A Kansas paper gives the following advice to young men who are contemplating matrimony. Don't ask a girl to marry you after dark when she is dressed fit to kill. Call on her, and when you leave, inadvertently drop a glove on the piano. Return for it the next morning at 9 o'clock. If she comes to the door with one shoe and one slipper on, her hair done up on curl papers, dressed in an old Mother Hubbard, our advice is to take to the woods. But, if she appears in a neat house dress, her hair done up, and a rose in the top of her hair, grab her quick.

The man who is not afraid of making a mistake is usually possessed of the elements of sucess. By this is not meant that a man should go ahead and do things and say things without preparation but after he has set out upon a task not to stop because he is afraid that he may blunder and be laughed at. People love for us anyway for the mstakes we make. It gives them a feeling of comraderie, and it also gives them a chance to laugh and be glad.

Late October Woods.

Clumped in the shadows of the beech—
In whose brown top the crows are loud,
Where, every side, great briars reach
And cling like hands—the beech drops crowd
The mossy cirque with neutral tints
Of gray, and deep, with berries bowed,
The buckbush reddens 'mid the mints.
O'erhead the forest scarcely stirs;
The wind is laid; the sky is blue;
Bush-clover, with its links of burs,
And some last blooms—few, pink of hue—
Makes wild the way; and everywhere
Slim, white-ribbed cones of fungi strew
The grass that's like a wild man's hair.
The jewel-weeds, whose pods bombard
The hush with fairy batteries
Of seeds, grow dense here; pattering hard
Their sacs explode, persuade the eyes
To search the heaven for show'rs. One seems
To walk where old Enchantment plies
Her shuttle of lost days and dreams.

SUBJECT TO REPUBLICAN RULES.

Henry Bentley of Towanda, was a candidate for the nomination of county commissioner at the Republican primaries in June last. For weeks previous to the primaries he made his fight and he made a good one. One of the agencies employed in his canvass was an announcement which he published in the county papers which was as follows:

"Having heretofore twice been a candidate for county commissioner, coming close to a nomination, I again hereby announce myself a candidate for that office, subject to Republican rules. I wish to thank friends for past favors and would appreciate any aid they might give me at the primaries on June 10th. H. H. Bentley, Towanda, Pa.

If we mistake not, Mr. Bentley also had cards printed announcing the fact that he was a candidate for the office "subject to Republican rules" and distributed them to voters.

Mr. Bentley is a man of worth and character and has many friends among the Republicans who gladly voted for him at the June primaries. He was defeated—failed to secure the nomination. But in view of the fact that he is now a candidate for the same office he sought then and is running independently, the question very naturally arises, What does "subject to Republican rules" mean, and what did he mean by soliciting Republican votes under this plea? As regards Mr. Bentley's candidacy, did "subject to Republican rules" mean anything? Evidently not, for, if it had meant anything, or had had any binding force, Mr. Bentley would not be a candidate now. His friends who took him at his word and believed his candidacy would indeed be "subject to Republican rules" and voted for him on the strength of that belief, were deceived.

GREEK, AND INDIAN CORN.

Mind development and mind training may be acomplished as well by means of the study of farm crops as of the dead languages. The study of Greek, says Professor Bailey of Cornell, is a no more proper means of education than is the study of Indian corn—the mind may be developed by means of either one—and classics and calculus are no more educational than are machines and potatoes.

The school garden work at Groton, the famous Harvard preparatory school, begins with the simple things which naturally interest a childish mind, and the first thing they know the youngsters are learning while they think they are playing. Then in the next step the interest in the work takes hold of them and they begin to feel a pride and proprietorship in doing things and acomplishing results which grown up people do. The wonder of the creative idea gets hold of the children. They plant a seed in the spring. It comes up, begins to grow, enlarges rapidly and before they have time to get tired, it is ripe and ready to harvest and eat. They have made it. It is the product of their work.

If it is a wonderful thing to the nature mind that man can bend the forces of nature to his intelligent will and plant and reap, that out of the same ground will spring a dozen different crops, all useful and beautiful, how much more amazing must it be to the youthful, growing mind.

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE.

A sermon on the duty of voting may sound trite to the average voter, but it cannot be denied that voters frequently need to have it preached to them. This is the time of the year when a sermon is most frequently heard.

Every citizen should vote. The earlier the better, but the injunction, "early and often" goes too far. Once is enough and all that the law allows. The law allows it and there are those whose zeal for a full representation of the popular will has caused them to maintain that it should be made obligatory. Perhaps that extreme would nullify the personal freedom on which we Americans set so much store, but remember, that if the law does not say you shall vote it is none the less your duty to do so.

This is a government by the people and the way the people govern is by voting some one into office to execute their will. But if the people do not vote, the officers chosen are not representative, and the result falls short of a government by the people. As a nation we have always been given to making strong claims for the virtue of our form of government, asserting that the thing done by the government represented the will of the people. It is our bounden duty to fully exploit the plan and give it every opportunity to give its best results. This can only be done by having a large and full expression of the popular will. It is as much your duty to vote as it is to pay your taxes.

PROSPERITY OF LEHIGH VALLEY.

The fifty-first annual report of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, the details of which have already been made known through the public press, shows a state of prosperity, which should be gratifying to any one interested in the welfare of the company.

The property was fully maintained during the year, and in addition, many substantial improvements were made in the matter of equipment, stone ballast, constructing and extending yards and side tracks, rebuilding bridges, etc., in line with the policy of the present management to keep the property up to the highest standard of efficiency in operation and earning power.

Among the important items of construction are the new shops at Sayre, now practically completed, and placed in partial operation. The operation of these shops will aid very largely in minimizing the expense of repairs to equipment, and thus result in a saving to the company.

The policy of the company to enter new fields for traffic and thus enlarge its scope of operation, is shown in the movement of building branch lines to manufacturing and shipping points not heretofore reached conveniently, where this construction can be done at reasonable expense. A branch line was constructed during the year from Elizabeth, N. J., to Irvingotn, a distance of about three miles, and a large freight house and coal pockets built at Irvington. This line will be a source of a large traffic increase from the growing district which it serves.

Work has been done to improve terminal conditions at Tifft Farm, in Buffalo, which gives increased and improved facilities under the control of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, for the expeditious and more economical handling of its increasing tonnage.

Work of a similar nature has also been done at other points, with a view to increase traffic. During the year 52 new industries were located along the line, and track connection made with 42 of them.

The commercial growth of the country and the oportunities for industrial development of the territory served by the Lehigh Valley railroad, the progressive methods of the management of the company, its increasing business and net earnings, make it a line of importance in eastern railway affairs.

SUBJECT OF INSTRUCTION.

Attention of supervising principals of public schools, all over the state is being called to the provision of an act of the recent legislature requiring "that a system of humane education, which shall include kind treatment of birds and animals, shall be included in the branches of study now required by law to be taught in the common schools; such instructions to be given to all the pupils up to and including the fourth grade of the public schools of the commonwealth, and to consist of not more than half an hour each week during the whole terms of the school."

The act requires that the principal or teacher of each school shall certify in each of his or her monthly reports to the School Board that such instruction has been given in the school under his or her control.

According to the interpretation of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Schaeffer, the law will be observed, if, as opportunity offers, the teaching of kind treatment of birds, animals, etc., be corelated with the teaching of other subjects. This work will unite qiute naturally with works in literature, reading, nature study and language. Representative Ouram, of Philadelphia, is the author of the act.

Married Fifty Years Ago.

An item of interest in connection with the golden wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Frsbie and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Frisbie of Orwell, last week is the fact that of four newly married couples who attended church at Orwell on Thanksgiving day, 1855, the Frisbies, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Warner and Mr. and Mrs. H. Champlin, all were present at the celebration.

There are merchants outside of Kentucky who do business in much the same spirit.

They don't actually expect customers to make public their needs through the newspapers, but they do wait for chance visitors to make the first move toward a mutually profitable understanding. SAW METEOR IN AIR AND HEARD EXPLOSION.

Canton Parties Witnesses of An Unusual Phenomenon.

About 5:30 o'clck last Friday afternoon Charles E. Riggs and several others at the railroad station at Canton had their attention attracted by a peculiar smoky appearance in the sky, and as they watched it closely they saw it was traveling rapidly and leaving a trail of conical shaped smoke behind it. A short time later a report like the explosion of dynamite was heard by many at Canton and in nearby places.

It was undoubtedly a meteor, and was probably the same that fell near Coatesville the same afternoon, and which was the subject of the following dispatch in the Philadelphia Press:

"O. G. Kacy, agent for the Pennsylvania railroad company at Coatesville, is the owner of a messenger from Mars or some other planet. He has a meteor which fell near the depot.

"Carefully observing the spot where the brilliant object fell, he went to the place, found a hole in the ground, and after digging to a depth of four feet was rewarded by finding the meteor, which is egg-shaped. It measures twelve by twenty-four inches and weighs several pounds. While digging, Kacy struck it with a pick and broke it.

"Dr. H. E. Williams, a local mineralogist, who examined it, says it is composed principally of sulphate of iron with a trace of gold, and says its appearance indicates that in its flight of millions of miles through space it was in a molten state."

The middle of the big 60-foot smoke stacks at the electric light station recently became so rusted out that it was found necessary to take it down. On Wednesday nigth of last week the heavy wind forestalled this move and blew it over. Friday it was taken down by men from the Humphrey Manufacturing company shops.

VALUABLE INDIAN RELIC.

Wyalusing Doctor Picks a Prize of Great Value.

On Friday of last week Dr. L. R. Lantz of Wyalusing, picked up such a prize in the form of an Indian "totem," while walking over the Wyalusing Improvement company's grounds just back of the popular pleasure grounds.

A "totem" is the picture of a beast or bird (this one was a representation of a bear carved on stone) used by the North American Indians as a symbolic designation of a family or a clan. Not only was the totem a symbol but it was also regarded as a sort of diety that could in some supernatural way watch over the member of the family or clan. When possible it was carried as an amulet or charm, and meant more to the Indian than a "good luck" token, as it stood for his conception of a Divine aid, or a kind Providence.

The relic is about eight inches long and about two inches in dameter. On one end is carved a fairly good representation of a bear. Dr. Lantz is to be congratulated on his find as he has now the nucleus of a most valuable collection of Indian relics.

GOT THREE YEARS.

Judge Archbald Puts It on Counterfeiter Davidson of New Albany.

Frank Davidson of New Albany, convicted of counterfeiting in the United States court, was sentenced to three years imprisonment in the Western penitentiary by Judge Archbald at Scranton on Friday.

Davidson was convicted at the last sesion of United States Court, which was held in Williamsport. Sentence was deferred until the grand jury had acted on the information against Howard Gray, his brother-in-law, who was alleged to be an acomplice of his. Davidson himself stated that Gray was the man wanted, while Gray's wife, who is Davidson's sister, and Gray's mother testified that Davidson was responsible for Gray's troubles.

The grand jury on Friday ignored the bills pending against Gray and as soon as Judge Archbald learned of this he called Davidson for sentence.

Carey, who has been for some months past the editor of the Sayre Times. Mr. Carey is an excellent newspaper man, industrious, resourceful and painstaking. He will be a valuable man for Mr. Murrelle, who by the way, is winning steadily increasing patronage in his new daily publication.

HEALTH COMMISSIONER TALKS OF VACCINATION.

Dr. Samuel G. Dixon Addressed Womens Clubs.

Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, health commissioner of Pennsylvania, gave an address before the meeting or the State Federation of Women's clubs held at Cambridge Springs on Thursday. As Mr. Dixon is the instigator of the movement to enforce the vaccination statute in regard to school children, his remarks on that subject will be interesting. He said:

"Welcoming you as co-laborers in this great field of sanitary reform, which promises so rich a harvest of benefits to mankind, I call your attention for a few momonts to certain matters to which the newly created department of health is just now especially addressing itself. The first problem which I wish to bring before you is the prevention of smallpox. And let me ask: Why is it that small pox, being so deadly, painful and loathsome a disease, while on the other hand, vaccination is so trifling an operation, resultant disturbance so slight, there prevails among the public not simply carelessness and indifference as to its performance, but even direct antagonism, obstinate resistance to the advice of the medical profession and the requirements of the law? Manifestly because the public are ignorant of what a terrible scourge smallpox would be were it not held in check by the almost universal practice of vaccination throughout civilized countries."

Checked by Vaccination.

Up to the time of Jenner's great discovery, contemporary writers of unquestioned credibility tell us that one-sixth of Europe died of smallpox.

Nearly all children were attacked by it before the seventh year. Five-sixths of the population of Europe suffered from it. In fact, many writers did not hesitate to say that sooner or later every individual was branded by it. It was the staple piece de resistance of the popular novelist, who made it the test of sonstancy in love.

Then suddenly, as if by a miracle, the pestilence which had been steadily increasing in extent and virulence for 400 years, began to diminish. This was due to the introduction of vaccination. And yet, in spite of incontrovertible evidence, there are those, and not a few, nor those always of defective education, who declare themselves as disbelievers in the efficiency of vaccination and opposed to its enforcement. If there are any such among this intelligent audience let me earnestly beg them to study this matter in the light of scientific investigation and not of partisan misrepresentation.

Bumped Into Horse Block.

While C. M. Culver, Esq., and Judge A. C. Fanning were coming down York avenue on Saturday in the former's carriage, the horse became frightened at the steam roller of the borough and shied into the ditch. The front wheel of the carriage struck a horse block in front of William Little's and both occupants of the carriage were thrown out. Both were bruised some but neither at all seriously hurt. The harness was torn loose from the horse by the sudden impact and the animal ran down the street a ways and then stopped. The buggy wheel was smashed to pieces.

PECULIAR LAW SUIT.

At Tunkhannock Reveals Strange Story of Unrequited Love.

The case of Sarah J. Wilcox against Henrietta Wilson, which was tried in Tunkhannock last week, has some romantc features. It appears that the plantiff was at one time engaged to be married to the defndant's deceased husband, but the engagement was subsequently broken by him and both of the parties afterwards married second choices. The fickle lover, however, always retained a warm spot in his heart for the fair plaintiff, so the story runs, and just previous to his death, when he was having his will drawn up, he expressed an intention of leaving her a bequest of quite a large sum of money. This his wife (the defendant in the suit) begged him not to do so on account of the gossip such a course might occasion among the worldly, and as a consideration for his refraining so to do, promised that she would after his death pay this sum to Mrs. Wilcox.

She failed to do so, however, although the whole estate was left to her in bulk, and her husband has been dead about seven years. Mrs. Wilcox learned of the agreement and brought suit. As there was no dispute of facts the case is being tried by the court without a jury. The plaintiff lives in Scranton and the defendant in Carbondale, but was on a visit in Tunkhannock when the writ was served upon her.

Mr. Middendorf has not as yet decided as to his future plans, but intends to make his home in Wyalusing for a time at least. He has been the owner of the Middendorf Hotel property for nearly twelve years and has proven one of the most popular hotel proprietors in the nothern part of the state. He purchased the property from D. H. Holland, taking possession on January 1st, 1894.

The road in question is that leading from the west end of State street, this borough, to Luthers Mills and Burlington and especially that portion of the road from opposite the W. T. Davies farm to Myer's ice pond. It is alleged that the bridge near the pond is not in repair and that no guard rails are provided. The prosecutors are B. F. Myer and James Kirwan. The hearing was continued until Wednesday.

BIGGEST SHIP AFLOAT

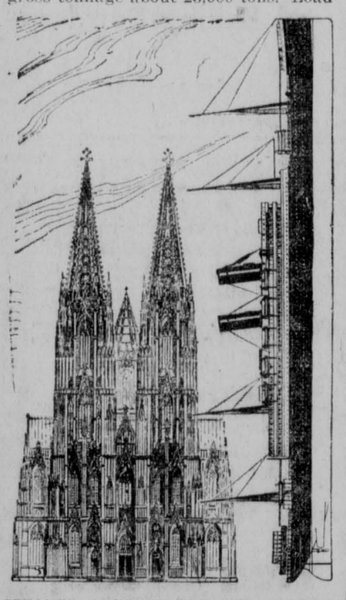
Steamer Amerika, Ocean Palace, Arrives at New York.

ON HER MAIDEN VOYAGE

Hamburg-American's New Liner a Marvel of Capacity and Luxuriousness—Carries Over 3,000 Passengers and a Crew of 600.

New York, Oct. 20.—The steamship Amerika of the Hamburg-American line, the largest and most luxurious vessel afloat, arrived in this port on her maiden voyage with over 3,000 passengers, among whom was Herr Ballin, director of the Hamburg-American company.

The Amerika is 700 feet in length, has a beam of 74 feet 6 inches and a depth of 53 feet. Her displacement, exceeding that of any other ship in the world, is about 42,000 tons and her gross tonnage about 23,000 tons. Loaded she carries 16,000 tons of cargo, which means that if her full cargo were transferred to freight cars and these placed end to end they would cover a distance of ten miles. She has accommodations for 3,400 passengers and carries a crew of 600, making a total of 4,000, or nearly as many persons as the population of a thriving manufacturing town.



STEAMER AMERIKA AND THE COLOGNE CATHEDRAL.

Has Many Innovations.

The Amerika is a twin screw ship and has so many distinct innovations below her upper deck that she may really be said to be the only transatlantic liner that comes up to the title of floating palace. Somebody has called her the St. Regis of the sea. One of the innovations in her service for the first saloon is a large a la carte cafe, where the waiter hands the passenger a check just as is done in a hotel. Persons who are seasick all the way can thus save on their meals.

Another unique feature is an electric passenger elevator. If a voyager needs exercise there is a gymnasium for him; babies can disport themselves in a big nursery; every room has its telephone; there is no such thing as an upper berth.

With all her luxuriousness the very newest and most original devices for safety are used on the floating hotel. Newest of all, she has a system of communicating through the water with the shore. The navigator can find by bell signals the location of lighthouses and lightships even if the fog is so dense or the snow so heavy that he cannot see a yard ahead.

JEROME'S FIRST GUN.

Ovation to District Attorney Marks Opening of His Campaign.

New York, Oct. 19.—Whatever doubts may have existed as to whether the popularity of District Attorney Jerome had waned since the days of his campaign of four years ago were dispelled at Carnegie hall, when Mr. Jerome advanced to the front of the platform and stood up to address the meeting called by the men who had signed the petition placing him in nomination for a second term as district attorney.

Every man and woman of the 4,000 present were on their feet, the men wildly cheering, the women waving their handkerchiefs.

Mr. Jerome dealt out no harsh words to candidates on any of the tickets, merely saying they were puppets dancing on the strings pulled by the bosses, but he did not spare the man he called "the groceryman from Newburg" or the one he termed "the bartender of Good Ground."

"No one will attack my record," declared Mr. Jerome. "I have made good, if I say it myself. But this fight that is now on is not a question of me. It is not a question of the candidates for the office of district attorney—no, nor even for the larger offices. It is a question of independence versus bossism."

Miss Alice's "Princely Gifts" Worth $150

Washington, Oct. 18.—Those "princely gifts" which Alice Roosevelt is about to bring to the United States, which have been represented to be so valuable that if the Dingley duty should be exacted on them President Roosevelt might have to contribute about a year's salary to the revenues of the government, are now pronounced to be merely a collection of souvenirs, and Miss Alice will pay the duty on them. Secretary of War Taft told some of his cabinet friends that all the presents Miss Alice had received when he left her in China would not bring $150 at auction.

WANTS RESERVE ELIMINATED

Mutual Actuary's Argument Before the Insurance Committee.

New York, Oct. 24.—The legislative insurance investigating committee listened to an argument in favor of removing the legal reserve fund restriction, which is generally regarded as the policy holders' chief safeguard against disaster in investing in life insurance. The advocate of reserve abandonment was Emory McClintock, the Mutual's actuary, who insisted on the witness stand that if security can be assured in England, as it is, by such a system, coupled with strict supervision and publicity, the same should be true of the United States.

Mr. McClintock also declared that in other states than New York evasion of the law demanding a first year premium reserve is common by the issuance of a policy purporting to be two policies—a short term and a life—and setting aside a reserve only on the alleged short term, which is a trifling sum. State commissioners, he said, winked at this evasion.

Mr. McKeen suggested that wildcat banks had proved disastrous and asked the witness whether, if the reserve requirement should be eliminated from the insurance laws, there would not be many wildcat insurance concerns started.

In reply Mr. McClintock said that in England, where the general rule which he advocated is now in force, the public supervision was so efficient that few if any insecure companies dared to start.

A MIDDLETOWN RAFFLES.

Boos Was a Business Man by Day, a Bandit by Night.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The robbery of one of the largest department stores in this city, as well as the plundering of several homes, was explained by the confession of Charles Boos, until the other day superintendent of the Walkill Transit company's lines in Orange county.

The case of Boos is remarkable. He was paid a liberal salary as superintendent of the railroad and was well known in the town. Ambitious mammas regarded the suave young bachelor as a splendid catch for their daughters. His future was bright. He had the world before him. Yet all the time he was playing the overworked role of Raffles.

The first charge against Boos was made by the officials of the traction company. It was discovered that a quantity of copper wire had been stolen, and Boos was accused. He was arrested, to the amazement of all who knew him, and taken to the jail at Goshen. The wire was traced to the store of a junk dealer, to whom it had been sold. Then a search was made of Boos' apartments. There the police found in a closet a pile of stolen goods, including many articles from the department store that had been mysteriously robbed.

Higgins Stands by Hendricks.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Governor Higgins emphatically asserted that, in his opinion, no charges had been filed against Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks or Superintendent of Banks Kilburn sufficient to warrant their removal. Upon his return from Olean he told the newspaper men that a false impression might have been gained from the manner in which certain things he said in this connection while in New York last Friday were reported. "When I said I had no power to remove certain officers," said he, "I did not wish to imply that I would remove them if I could. While I stand ready to remove any public officer who is either derelict in his duty or incompetent, I do not consider that there is anything at present in state affairs that demands such action."

Bryan Shakes Hands With Togo.

Tokyo, Oct. 24.—William J. Bryan was present at the reception in honor of Admiral Togo. The mayor introduced Mr. Bryan to the admiral. An exchange of cordial sentiments followed. The admiral was delighted at the unexpected presence of Mr. Bryan. It is learned that Admiral Togo did not anchor even once in five months from the time of the naval battle of Aug. 10, 1904, till the Russian battleship Sevastopol was torpedoed in the last days of December.

New York, Oct. 24.—The United States government placed one of the largest contracts for torpedoes ever made with the E. W. Bliss company of Brooklyn. The contract calls for the delivery of $2,000,000 worth of dirigible electric torpedoes of the kind which the company patented several years ago. The stock of the E. W. Bliss company rose several points on the exchange.

Baby Fell on Woman's Head.

Minersville, Pa., Oct. 24.—Falling out of a second story window at the home of Adam Luscavage, a six-month-old baby escaped death as if by a miracle. A washerwoman was passing at the time, with her basket on her head. Baby tumbled into the basket and was unhurt, though the washerwoman was knocked down and driven almost into spasms by her fright.

ACTION AGAINST BANK

New Developments In Failure of Pennsylvania Institution.

POLITICIANS LIFTING NOTES

Alleged Claims In Which Suit Will Probably Be Brought — Depositors Promised Full Payment—Pittsburg Officers Sell Railroads They Control

Pittsburg, Oct. 22.—It is stated that information will probably be made this week against the officers and directorate of the Enterprise National bank of Allegheny charging them with embezzlement in having received money from depositors when, it is alleged, that they knew the bank was insolvent. This action will be brought, it is said, under the amendment to the act of 1863, approved on May 9, 1880, which provides that any banker, broker or officer of any trust or savings institution, state or national bank, who shall take or receive money from a depositor with a knowledge that he, they or the bank at the time is insolvent shall be guilty of embezzlement and shall be punished by a fine in double the amount so received and imprisoned from one to three years in the penitentiary. Such action would result in all papers, names and details of transaction being produced in open court.

Apparently the directors of the bank are as much in the dark regarding the bank's financial condition as they were when the doors were closed Wednesday last. The conference of the directors and their counsel as to the advisability of taking legal action, either criminal or civil, was discussed and also methods to be pursued in holding the estate of Cashier Clark liable for any shortage that may be discovered.

Western Railroads For Sale.

Negotiations are now under way for the sale of the Santa Fe Central Railroad company by the Pittsburg owners. It is said several offers have been made for the property. At least two of the three railroads which now have connection with it are among negotiators. These roads are the Denver and Rio Grande, the Rock Island and the Santa Fe property. Under the terms proposed it is said the project will mean a considerable loss to the men who went into the plan, but the circumstances which have arisen through the troubles of the Enterprise National bank have led them to the conviction that they had better accept a reasonable loss now than wait longer for the big returns which they still feel confident will come from the operation of the road ultimately.

The Leader is authority for the statement that the politicians concerned are lifting their notes through the Bank of Pittsburg, the clearing house representative of the Enterprise National, in order to conceal the identity of the notemakers. S. P. Kohn, a stockholder of the Enterprise, said that the stockholders will make up any deficiency and that depositors will be paid in full.

Bank Examiner Cunningham said that he had no knowledge of a statement of the dead cashier alleged to have been discovered among the bank's papers and also stated that there is no paper in the bank bearing the name of Senator Penrose as maker, indorser or guarantor.

LADEN WITH LOOT.

"Pirate Yacht" Taken at Newport a Ship of Mystery.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 23.—The most minute examination is being made by the authorities of Newport of practically every article included in the thousands of dollars' worth of loot on board the "pirate yacht" Doroda, found laden to the gunwales with plunder from a series of robberies of the great summer mansions along Long Island sound.

The hunt among the quantities of silverware, handsome gowns, household goods and pawn tickets for jewelry is expected to lead to important clews in connection with the mystery behind the shooting of Mrs. Walter C. Morrill at her home in Greenwich, Conn., by a burglar interrupted at his work and also of the disappearance of the Bonner safe containing $25,000 worth of jewels at Stamford.

One singular discovery occurred in the search of the yacht. This was a visiting card of Miss Olga Maxwell of New York, who disappeared last July at the same time as Midshipman Robert L. Jackson of the battleship Missouri. Jackson was found by his father in Canada ten days after his disappearance. He said that he had no recollection of leaving the ship and could remember little after joining the woman.

The supposed owner of the Doroda is Henry Allison Jackson of Taunton, Mass. Immediately after the boat was seized a warrant for his arrest was issued and detectives are hunting for him. Jackson is not related to Midshipman Jackson.

Wonderful Power

PANOPATHIC PROFESSOR HEALS HOPELESS INVALIDS.

Health and Strength Restored by This Man, Who Says There Is No Disease He May Not Cure if Timely Treated. Makes Human Heart Beat as Before In Body of Woman Threatened With Burial, She States—Gives Services and Course of Home Treatment to the Sick and Afflicted Absolutely Free.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—Wallace Hadley, the famous Professor of Panopathy and Physiactrics, has again demonstrated his wonderful power over disease. He shows that the drugs prescribed by doctors and the surgeon's knife are often worse than useless, and by healing hundreds of hopeless invalids who say they were pronounced incurable by physicians he proves his claims that there is no disease he may not cure if treatment is taken in time. One of his patients even states that he has made the human heart beat as before in the body of a woman prepared for the grave and performed other seeming miracles of restoration to health and strength of men and women given up to death. Indeed, he succeeds in the face of such apparent impossibilities that he appears to have a method of treatment unsurpassed by any school or theory of medical practice. Apparently the supposedly incurable diseases, such as paralysis, consumption, heart disease, cancer, deafness, etc., are treated by him as well as the more common disorders of humanity. Going still further, he has proved that he can cure patients in their own homes, thousands of miles away, just as surely as though they came to him in person. To extend the blessing of this wonderful treatment to mankind, there remained but one thing for him to do, and that he has done by offering his services free of charge to all who stand in need. He is quoted as saying that he feels it is his duty to help the sick and afflicted wherever they may be.

One of the cases that makes possible the belief that Professor Hadley's power over disease is most unusual and remarkable is that of a Mr. E. C. Bess, of El Campo, Texas, who says he was rescued from the grave after the doctors had given him up to die, could do nothing to revive him and left him for dead. Brought to this condition by the combined attack of kidney and liver disease, dropsy and acute articular rheumatism, he suffered the torments of the damned and was about insane with pain before the end came. The doctors and their medicines failed utterly. Although he says he was as good as dead when Professor Hadley's attention was called to his case, he was speedily restored to life and health by this panopath's marvelous power, though Mr. Bess himself confesses that he does not know exactly how this seeming miracle was performed. Another case almost equally remarkable was that of a Mrs. J. C. Whitfield, of Norfolk, Va., who asserts that he revived the vital spark in her body when she was prepared for the grave; that at the end of a long siege of illnes from a complication of diseases her body felt cold and lifeless. But she says that Professor Hadley made her heart beat as before, the blood flow through her veins once more and warmth return to her wasted body. Naturally she looks upon her restoration to health as passing understanding. Charles W. Miller, of Columbia Furnace, Va., claims that Professor Hadley saved his life when threatened with a deadly cancer, without the use of a knife or burning. Yet these are simply random instances selected from among the hundreds where Professor Hadley's almost unbelievable power has made the bonds of disease fall away as if they were broken chains, and restored health and happiness to suffering men and women Naturally, the announcement that a man of such wonderful ability to heal will hereafter give his services and a course of home treatment free to all who ask is most sensational and far-reaching in its effects, since it gives every one throughout the country, the poor as well as the rich, an equal opportunity to be cured by availing themselves of this philantiropic offer made by one of the greatest scientists of the age. And it is the more remarkable and fortunate in view of the fact that there is no disease that he may not cure if timely treated.

When questioned in regard to his work for humanity, Professor Hadley said: "Yes, it is true; but I intend to go on curing any who is ill of any disease they may have, just as long as I am able. Indeed, where I cured hundreds before, I expect to cure thousands hereafter. I have become convinced that it is my duty to help the sick and afflicted wherever they may be, whoever they are and whatever their circumstances."

"But how about those at a distance?"

"Distance makes no difference. I can cure those thousands of miles away just as easily as those who come to my office. Letters do just as much good as if I went to them or they came to me." Do you relly men that any one who is sick can get a free course of treatment?"

"Exactly,I mean just that. All that one who is ill from any cause has to do in order to enlist my services is to write me, addressing Wallace Hadley, M. D, office 480B- No. 2255 Broadway, New York, telling me the disease they suffer from most and their principal symptoms and I will give them my services and send them a course of home treatment absolutely free of charge."

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern For a Shirt Waist For the Boy Designed by Martha Dean—No. 4642

To keep the school boy looking well is rather expensive for the mother who has to buy all of his clothes, for there is no human force which can go through clothes so quickly and easily as the young American with his innate love for constant activity. But this is as it should be, for we need lively boys to make our future men, and so, no matter how fast he wears out clothes, his mother is never tired of providing others. Boys' clothes are not so difficult to make as one might think, and if mother be ambitious with her needle considerable money may be saved in this way, as the suits wear longer and the cost of making is saved. Here is a suggestion for a blouse waist which is very simply made and suitable to any flannel, serge or washing fabric. Box plaits appear in front as well as in back, while a cuff like father's finishes the sleeve. For the medium size one and three-quarters yards of thirty-six inch material are needed to develop the pattern. Five sizes, 4 to 12 years.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

Send 10 cents to this office, give number of this pattern, No. 4642, and state size desired. It will then be sent to you by mail postpaid. Be sure to write plainly and always give full address. Several days must be allowed for delivery of pattern.

Patterns For a Striking Harness Costume Designed by Martha Dean—Nos. 6321 and 6322

The popularity of the suspender costume has made it so common that many particular women avoid it. That the suspender style is a good one no one dares to deny, and if it might be developed in some other than the regular manner it would find many grateful patrons. With this in mind the accompanying design was evolved, and its rare good style and becoming lines will win for it many admirers. The waist portion consists of a fanciful bertha, through which the suspenders pass. The lower part is one with the suspenders and gives the princess effect. The skirt is a graceful circular model, having an inverted box plait in front and two in back. The woman who has found the smooth fitting skirts so becoming will welcome this with its fitted upper portion and fullness falling in graceful ripples to the lower edge. The skirt is in one piece and is cut without dart or seam, and in its cut alone rest all the novelty and merit of the mode. This once assured by a reliable pattern, nothing remains to perplex the home sewer. Sizes, No. 6321, 32 to 40 inches bust measure; No. 6322, 20 to 30 inches waist.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

Send 20 cents to this office, give numbers of these patterns, Nos. 6321 and 6322, and state sizes desired. They will then be sent to you by mail postpaid. Or either of the patterns will be sent for 10 cents. Be sure to write plainly and always give full address. Several days must be allowed for delivery of pattern.

Miss Drennen of Birmingham, Ala., sang a very pleasing soprano solo at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning. Miss Drennen has a sympathetic voice with unusual power and sings with good expression.

Can't Blame Him.

A Honesdale woman, it is reported, rushed into the telegraph office the other day and informed the operator that her husband had gone to New York, and while there was to get a banner for the Sunday School, but she had forgotten to tell him the inscription and how large the banner was to be. She then wrote a telegram and handed it to the operator. It reads as follows: "My Dear Frank, Hotel——, New York. Unto us a child is born, eight foot long and two feet wide." The husband is still in New York, and it is rumored that he isn't coming back.—Carbondale Leader.

ASSIGNMENT MADE.

M. Craig & Son of Bentley Creek to Go Out of Business.

M. Craig & Son of Bentley Creek, well known merchants of that section of the county, on Saturday made an assignment for benefit of creditors to B. F. Gregory of Athens. It is understood that creditors will receive 100 cents on a dollar and the assignment is made to wind up the business. H. K. Craig, the junior member of the firm, is ill with nervous prostration and as he had charge of the business it was decided best to discontinue.

The liabilities of the firm are placed at $12,000 while the assets are said to amount to about $18,000. With good management it is expected that the property will not only pay all its debts but will leave something over. Mr. Gregory is a well known Athens man, a retired merchant, and he will go to Bentley Creek and take charge disposing of the stock and closing out the business. J. T. Corbin, Esq., of Athens is attorney for the Craigs.

A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT.

Was the Meteor Noticed Last Week at Honesdale.

The meteor that passed over this section of the state on Friday, Oct. 13, was also noticed at Hazleton and Honesdale. At Hazleton it looked as as large as an ordinary barrel. It moved from south to north, leaving a long, brilliant and beautiful trail that illuminated the earth with a peculiar glow like the setting sun on a bright clear day. The scene was grand, but awe-inspiring. At Honesdale for several minutes after the meteor passed, its path was marked by a streak of smoke, which gyrated and twisted with the wind. People at Honesdale think that the meteor buried itself in the earth in the neighboorhood of Seeleyville.

S. C. I. Notes.

The S. C. I. football team, accompanied by a fair sized crowd of students and outsiders, went to Monroeton on Saturday afternoon, where they were defeated by the Monroeton team by a score of 5 to 0. In the last of the first half Jones made the touchdown for Monroe, but failed to kick the goal. In the second half the S. C. I. boys held them well, and were pounding down the field for a touchdown when time was called. The halves were 20 and 15 minutes. The Towanda people considered themselves well treated and expect to do the same by the Monroeton team on the return of the game.

The Susquehanna Collegiate Institute foot ball team will play the Sayre High school team at the East Side grounds here on Saturday afternoon. The game will be called at 2 o'clock.

Miss Marion Fairchild is a new student enrolled at the Institute.

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

Brushed Scales from Face Like Powder—Under Physicians Six Months But Grew Worse — Some Said Face Would Be Marked for Life—Now Without a Blemish.

CUTICURA REMEDIES WORK WONDERS.

"As I was a sufferer with eczema I write to tell you what a great friend I found in Cuticura Remedies. In six months I had tried three doctors, but did not get any better. It was on my body and on my feet so thick that I could hardly put a pin on me without touching eczema. My face was covered, my eyebrows came out, and then it got in my eye. I then went to another doctor. He asked me what I was taking for it, and I told him Cuticura. He said that was a very good thing, but that he thought that my face would be marked for life. But Cuticura did its work and my face is now just as clear as it ever was.

"My brother-in-law told me about the wonderful Cuticura remedies. I took his advice and got the Ointment, Soap, and Resolvent. I washed with the Cuticura Soap and then applied the Ointment, and took Cuticura Resolvent as directed. In a short time my face began to get better, and when I had taken one bottle of Resolvent I could brush the scales off my face like a powder. When I had taken four bottles my face was as clear as ever.

"I told all my friends about my remarkable cure. I feel so thankful I want everybody far and wide to know what Cuticura can do. It is a sure cure for eczema. (signed) Mrs. Emma White, 641 Cherrier Place, Camden, N. J., April 25, 1905."

THE ASYLUM SCHOOL CASE.

Inspector Finds an Advanced School at Durell a Necessity.

Hon. E. A. Strong of Wyalusing, appointed by the court an inspector to inquire into and report on the matter of a petition to oust five members of the Asylum township school board, has filed his report and makes the following recommendation:

"I would recommend that if the said board of school directors shall not within 15 days after the service of the notice of filing this report upon the attorneys of record, open a school and provide a competent teacher for the same at Durell Center, as prayed for, that a rule be granted to show cause why the said William Braund, Fred Braund, Thomas Hennessey, J. B. Neiley and J. J. Elliott should not be removed from office."

The inspector finds that an advanced school in the Durell sub-district of Asylum township is necessary; that in 1904 an addition was built to the school building there and a successful school maintained, the building being equipped to acommodate 60 pupils; that in the vear ending June 5, 1905, 40 pupils attended this school, 22 in the advanced grade and 18 in the primary room. Also that approximately the same number stand ready to attend a similar school there, which the board refuses to open.

The difficulty in the school district dates back some time, and arose primarily over the objection of some patrons of the school to the establishment of the advanced grade or central school. At the last election for school directors the issue was on this point, and one of the contentions of the board in refusing to open the school is that they are simply obeying the expressed will of their constituents, having been elected upon the platform of no advanced school at Durell Center. Lilley & Wilson are the attorneys for the petitioners, and S. H. Smith and D. C. DeWitt represent the school directors.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS.

Waverly Boys Do Some Amateur Cracksman Work.

A remarkable record of crime was unearthed by Chief Brooks of Waverly last week which, when the age of the culprits is taken into consideration, throws "Raffles" completely in the shade and makes "The Amateur Cracksman" by Hornung seem tame. Two little boys, Frank and Willie Sullivan, of Lincoln street, brothers, ages six and eight years, respectively were taken into custody Tuesday morning and acknowledged being guilty of five burglaries. Last Saturday the home of Mr. Sheip, the sexton of the Presbyterian church, was broken into and the entire house ransacked. Among other things the keys of the church were taken and that night the church was entered.

The boys had been seen playing in the neighborhood and were suspected. About two weeks ago the house of J. D. Hoagland was entered in the night and $5 taken from a pocketbook. The boys and said that they entered the house climbing on the other's shoulders to get in. They also said that they took $1.76 from the Lincoln street school house and they confessed to burglarizing two houses in Waverly street. They will probably be sent to the house of Correction at Buffalo. The same two boys borrowed a horse a few weeks ago which was tied in Broad street and were found near the park some two hours later, having driven the horse all over town.

LIGHTNING RODS.

Agent Traveling About Canton Sells Just to Advertise.

Recently there was a gentleman visiting the rural residents in the vicinity of Canton, offering them an "unusual proposition" in lightning rods "to advertise." He suceeded in making a deal with Harmon Dreste and William Warren of Windfall, who signed contracts, says the Canton World.

Later they became uneasy over the deal and the contracts they had signed, and came to this place to look up the agent. On advice of Attorneys Stone and Brooks, warrants were taken out for his arrest, but he could not be found.

The lightning rod man represented himself as Mr. King, selling the Copper Tube Lightning Rod Company's rods, but no address was left so that the order might be countermanded. There may be parties along later to fulfill the contract and collect the pay.

The Goat Bucked Hard.

A case of interest not only to members of the Order of the Maccabees, but to all who have been initiated into any of the secret fraternities is on trial in the Supreme Court at Canandaigua. The case is Oscar D. Thompson, of Geneva, against the Supreme Tent of the Maccabeps of the World, and it is brought to recover damages for injuries which Thompson alleges he received while being initiated into the tent of the order at Hapewell in 1903. Thompson alleges that during the ceremony of riding the goat he was roughly handled and severely injured and that his injuries were such as to entitle him to $1,600 damages. The interest of the case centers in the fact that it is expected that the whole course of stunts to which Thompson was put while being initiated will be brought out in the evidence.

Held to Court.

J. E. Allen was held in $100 bail Thursday before Justice Meredith on the charge of using an illegal screen in an eel track in that it had wire instead of slats. W. E. Shoemaker, special fish warden, appeared for the prosecution and was represented by W. P. Wilson, Esq. H. F. and Paul E. Maynard of Athens appeared for the defendant.

OWEGO DISTRICT LEAGUERS.

Seventeenth Annual Convention in Athens—Wyalusing Next Year.

The seventeenth annual convention of the Owego District Epworth League was held in the Athens M. E. church last week, and was a highly successful meeting.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Arthur R. Bloomfield, Newark Valley; vice president, J. H. Dimon, Candor; second vice president, Gilbert Pembleton, Tioga Center; third vice president Frank Lott, Orwell, secretary and treasurer; Miss Edith Robison, Owego; corresponding secretary, Miss Laura Drake, Athens; superintendent of Junior League, Mrs. J. F. Tozer, Waverly; a member of the Board of Control, Mrs. Maud Warner, Candor.

At the close of the meeting an invitation to hold the next convention at Wyalusing was extended by their representative and was accepted.

Unique Mail Box Arrangement.

Near Delmar, Tioga county, along the R. F. D. route, is a unique contrivance that is attracting much attention. On a post at the intersection of two roads is an old wagon wheel. Seven distinct mail boxes are fastened in the wheel, representing the different patrons on that corner of the road. The mail carrier drives up to the wheel and turns it around, placing each person's mail in their own box. This contrivance does away with seven separate posts.

This is equal to the plan used on Carrier Goodenough's route in this county along Sugar Creek, where an endless wire run over pulleys carries the mail down a steep bluff and across the creek from the main road to a farm house.

Champion Coon Catchers.

We believe that this section has the medal firmly anchored for the capturing of coons. If not, then let us hear from anyone who has a better record than Guy and Albert Roberts of Neath. They not only are entitled to the medal for the total number of caught, but also for the big bag of these fellows brought home on Friday night of last week. Up to Saturday of this week they had captured a total of twenty-nine this season and on Friday night, October 14, they tried their luck in a corn field near Milo Oakley's at Prattville. This raid on the corn eaters surprised even themselves for they returned home with nine coons.—LeRaysville Times.

Dimock—Pierce.

A pretty home wedding was celebrated on Wednesday of last week at LeRaysville, when Frank L. Dimock and Miss Alice E. Pierce were united in marriage by Rev. Magee Pratt. The guests were nearly all members of the families of the bride and groom. The house was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums, dahlias and evergreens, the young people standing under an arch of simlax during the ceremony. Many useful and valuable gifts, including a fine oil painting by the groom's brother, Paul Dimock, were received by the bride. After the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Dimock left for a wedding journey amid a shower of rice and good wishes.

Grange Meeting.

The next session of Pomona grange No. 23 will be held at West Franklin on Nov. 10 and 11.

PLAYED TIE GAME.

Towanda High School and Orioles of Sayre in Hard Contest.

The Towanda High school foot ball team met a worthy foe in the Oriole team of Sayre here Tuesday afternoon and when the time keepers called the dogs of war off from each other the score stood 6 to 6. It was a hard, fiercely fought contest from shoe cleat to head gear and there was nothing in it that resembled tiddledewinks or discreet parlor tennis. The boys were there to get points and they did what they could to save the country.

No scores were made in the first half but in the second the locals began a battery ram that keeps its nose until a touchdown was landed, Jimmie Ayers turning the trick. That young man also booted the leather for the goal. Score Towanda, 6; Sayre, 0. Then Sayre went at it and by some hard bucking of the line, two double passes got to striking distance of the goal line and McCabe went through for a touchdown. Johnson kicked the goal. This tied the score. Towanda had the ball and was doing good work when time was called. Strong of Towanda was injured in the second half after putting up a fine game and had to retire. His shoulder was painfully wrenched but was not seriously hurt. J. Ayers took his place in the backfield, Chamberlain took Rogers place at tackle and Rogers went to end. There was a fair sized crowd on the field but they made up for numbers in getting on the field all through the game.

CHANGE IN OWNERS.

Robinson Store at Bentley Creek Sold to Elmira Man.

A deal of much interest, especially in the northwestern part of the county, is the sale of Sheriff S. F. Robinson's store and stock at Bentley Creek to Hubert S. Masten of Elmira. Mr. Masten takes possession about Nov. 1. Sheriff Robinson's father, Major J. C. Robinson, began business at Bentley Creek in 1865 and the business has been conducted by the Robinsons since that time until about a year ago when Edgar Berry took charge. Mr. Berry will return to his farm. The stand is a fine one for business and has always enjoyed a large trade.

The new owner, Mr. Masten, is a splendid man for a general mercantile business and the people of Bentley Creek and vicinity can be assured of a progressive, up to date store. Mr. Masten has been in business for himself and for some 10 years traveled for C. M. & R. Tompkins, the well known Elmira wholesale grocery house.
